J. Gordon Arkin is a retired partner with Foley & Lardner LLP and was a member of the firm's Finance & Financial Institutions, Health Care Finance and Transactional & Securities Practices and the Health Care Industry Team. Gordon practiced general business law with an emphasis on municipal finance and airport law. He served as special counsel to many airports and was general counsel to the Greater Orlando Aviation Authority for over 20 years.

Gordon has over 40 years of experience in representing clients in negotiating all types of commercial transactions, including business acquisitions and sales; state and federal agency regulatory and legislative counseling; commercial property and facility leasing, management and development; and municipal finance and securities. He has served as lender's counsel, borrower's counsel, underwriter's counsel and trustee's counsel on billions of dollars of financings and interest rate swaps. He represented the owners and operators of senior living facilities throughout the United States. He has also represented lenders in providing billions of dollars of loans to insurance companies created by various states that insure against hurricane damage.

Representative Experience

- Representation of a nationally known company in providing a $4.0 billion liquidity put to the Florida Hurricane Catastrophe Fund
- Representation of a public company in the acquisition of eight senior living facilities located in four states
- Representation of the City of Orlando in renegotiating the agreement that allows the Greater Orlando Aviation Authority to operate Orlando International Airport until 2065

Awards and Recognition

He is Peer Review Rated as AV Preeminent®, the highest performance rating in Martindale-Hubbell's Peer Review Rating system, and from 2000 until his retirement in 2013, was selected by his peers for inclusion in

The Best Lawyers in America®, in the areas of administrative law, corporate law and equipment finance. In 2013, he was named The Best Lawyers in America® Orlando Administrative/Regulatory Lawyer of the Year.
