Brooke Bahlinger Caruso is a skilled litigator who helps companies defend employment claims and protect their trade secrets and confidential information. She is a member of the firm's Labor & Employment Practice, of which the firm's national and Dallas office groups have been recognized by Best Lawyers as Tier 1 practices. The Texas Labor and Employment group has also received Chambers USA rankings. Brooke was also selected by SuperLawyers as a Rising Star in 2025.

Brooke represents a broad range of organizations across many industries, including healthcare and manufacturing clients. Brooke advises clients in all aspects of labor and employment matters, including pleadings and motion practice, discovery, mediation, settlement, trial and appeal. Brooke also has experience litigating and presenting complex matters to government agencies, including the EEOC, DOL and NLRB. Brooke also advises clients in mergers and acquisition matters. Brooke has particular proficiency in Title VII litigation and has represented employers in a wide variety of employment matters, including disability laws; discrimination, retaliation and harassment; wage and hour; executive agreements; breach of contract; OSHA and safety; terminations, hiring and layoffs, and severance agreements. She is emerging as a respected advisor in her field. Brooke's clients emphasize her ability to understand business needs and provide insight at each stage of litigation. Clients also note her keen ability to prepare employees for depositions and trial, including C-suite employees.

Brooke has successfully defended companies against claims exceeding US$5 million and secured favorable results for clients across all phases of litigation, including summary judgment. Brooke has served as second chair in a weeklong trial representing a distributor and secured a successful outcome for the client.

She maintains an active trial docket while also providing necessary business counseling. Brooke is passionate about pro bono work and maintains a robust pro bono practice, including supporting the Dallas Volunteer Attorney Program and working with clients on asylum cases.
