Nicholas Chamis is a trusted advisor to clients and families as they plan for the future. Nick adds value by working through all phases of their planning, from the implementation of an initial estate plan through many sophisticated estate planning strategies and structures for tax, business succession, and/or charitable planning. His practice encompasses estate planning, transfer tax planning, estate and trust administration, and other wealth planning issues.

Nick is a member of the firm's Tax, Benefits & Estate Planning Practice and has extensive and sophisticated tax preparation and planning experience, specifically including estate, gift, and income tax.

Prior to joining the firm, Nick was an associate at a Chicago-based law firm, where he managed complex tax compliance for clients, including the preparation of individual, gift, trust, estate, and entity tax returns. He was also a tax analyst for The Ayco Company, where he prepared complex income and gift tax returns for wealthy executives.
