Ryan N. Parsons offers clients a rare blend of proven in-house advisory experience and a demonstrated successful track record as an experienced litigator representing and counseling employers in all aspects of the employment relationship.

Ryan's practice focuses on management-side labor relations, complex employee benefit litigation, and appellate matters. His extensive experience includes providing practical, thoughtful counsel to employers on a variety of labor and employment matters, including collective bargaining and labor arbitrations, performance management, discipline and discharge, ADA and FMLA compliance, wage-and-hour, and workplace safety. Ryan is also well-versed in leading targeted trainings for HR and people leaders, as well as reviewing and revising HR policies and processes, to mitigate employment law risk.

He returned to Foley following several years as associate general counsel and interim general counsel for Kohler Co. During his tenure with the Wisconsin-based manufacturer, Ryan advised company stakeholders on a wide range of complex labor and employment issues, including workplace investigations, litigation strategy, wage-and-hour compliance, union negotiations, and restrictive covenants. He managed the company's employment litigation portfolio and led the employment workstream for its mergers and acquisition's function, including in its multibillion-dollar divestiture of one of its global divisions. Ryan played a central role in developing company-wide policies on performance management, crisis response, and workplace safety, counseling across functions to deliver proactive, practical guidance across Kohler's global footprint.

Ryan previously worked for over a decade as an attorney in Foley's Milwaukee office, rising to senior counsel before beginning his in-house role. Before Foley, Ryan was a law clerk for the Hon. Diane S. Sykes of the U.S. Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals and a judicial intern to the Hon. David T. Prosser, Jr. of the Wisconsin Supreme Court and the Hon. Lynn S.
