Juan Antonio Serafin is an associate in the Mexico City office of Foley & Lardner where he focuses his practice on foreign trade and customs law, litigation, and advisory. He has represented clients in administrative proceedings before governmental agencies and other organizations related to customs matters, audits, filing of appeals, and conclusive agreements.

He has also assisted clients in negotiation proceedings before administrative agencies in connection with tariff classifications, verification of origin, non-tariff restrictions and measures, and tax credits, among others.

Furthermore, he has experience in litigation matters representing clients on trial against acts of authority, defending their interests on international trade, customs, tariff, import quotas, and tax cases, acting inside nullity trials and constitutional claims.

In addition to his foreign trade and customs practice, Juan Antonio has provided counsel on intellectual property matters and amparo proceedings, participating in cases before minor tribunals up to Mexico's Supreme Court of Justice.
